Event summary

Split Port Authority presented its pilot activities from the MIMOSA project at this year's Adriatic Sea Forum in Dubrovnik on May 4 and 5. Since 2013, when the Forum was launched, until today, the Forum represents an international reference event for all operators in the cruise, ferry and nautical sectors. Entrepreneurs and managers of shipping companies, maritime agencies, port terminals, tour operators, travel agencies, marinas and small ports, nautical charter companies and other organizations attended, together with representatives of the Government, public, national and international bodies, at a two-day event where, among other things, discussed the possibilities and new ways in which maritime tourism can be developed in the Adriatic.

Audience

On the event, there were more than 50 international lecturers and more than 250 operators. More than 300 participants discussed the experiences and future of passenger traffic in Adriatic ports and nautical. In two days, more than 15 meetings and discussions were held on the tourism potential and challenges facing the Adriatic region.
