What's next?

FRAMESPORT project now starts the second phase of data collection.

A new round of data collection on small ports facing the Adriatic Sea will be launched soon.

This phase, in order to obtain a homogenized sample data for both the side of the Adriatic, will be now more represented for the Croatian coast.

All the project partners will be engaged in this important procedure, being responsible for the collection of data on small ports' infrastructures and services of their own territory.

Data will be collected till the end of March and the outcomes from their analysis will flow into the strategic document that is the final output of the project.
