ADRIADAPT Newsletter - Issue no. 6

announcing the Final Conference - June 8, 2021

ADRIADAPT – A Resilience information platform for Adriatic cities and towns started officially on January 1st 2019, and unites technicians, policy makers, planners and scientists from Italy and Croatia in their efforts for creating a knowledge base for cities and towns in adapting to climate change. Supporting cities in creating good and sustainable strategies, building resilience and preparing for climate change is increasingly important also for cities and towns in the Adriatic area; climate change impacts are becoming progressively concrete with more extreme weather events as well as with slow onset impacts on the population, habitats in and around cities and in consequence, on local economies.

Cities and towns, as concentrations of cultural, social and economic activities along the Adriatic coasts, need to prepare for coastal and river flooding, coastal erosion and subsidence in order to maintain and enhance their ability to support livelihoods, local and regional economies and infrastructures. Further challenges for the Adriatic coastal areas are connected to freshwater availability under threat by the salinization of aquifers and fires related to droughts and heat waves.

One of the main outputs of the ADRIADAPT project is an Italian-Croatian adaptation platform – a tool to support municipalities in both countries in developing adaptation plans or progressing their ongoing work on climate change adaptation.

Please note the ADRIADAPT Final Conference in your agenda: 8th of June, 9:30am - 3:00pm CEST.

We will talk about "Knowledge for local resilience" in an on-line event.

The Conference addresses practitioners, policy makers and actors at all levels involved or interested in local climate resilience and aims at showcasing ADRIADAPT achievements and discuss perspectives for creating systematic support and access to knowledge for these policies.

The conference is organized by CMCC and the ADRIADAPT Consortium.

The ADRIADAPT Project is co-funded by the INTERREG CBC Programme Italy-Croatia.

Please pre-register at the following link: Registration to the ADRIADAPT Final Conference - Knowledge for local resilience.
