1 Introduction

The Adriadapt newsletters has been designed to provide widespread information about the project activities. They were delivered to thematic networks and partner networks, as well as to local stakeholders, in order to increase communities' resilience and adaptive capacity, involving local authorities, NGO's, citizens, economic actors, etc.

The newsletters were produced and translated to three languages, Croatian and Italian for dissemination within the project area and English for wider dissemination within international networks.

Every newsletter contained update on project recent activities and events. Further to presenting project outcomes and progress, each newsletter will present a portrait of one project partner per country.
